Give and Take: How Timebanking is Transforming Healthcare ...

Time banking is a system that lets people use time, instead of money, to pay for goods and services. People simply trade an hour of their time for an hour of someone else's. It doesn't matter whether that time is spent on highly skilled work, like plumbing, or a simple job like doing laundry; if you give an hour, you get an hour.

Time Banking Explained - How to Trade Services With a Time ...

Timebanking Basics. Timebanking is a time-based currency. Give one hour of service to another, and receive one time credit. You can use the credits in turn to receive services — or you can donate them to others. An hour of service is always one time credit regardless of the nature of the service performed. One Hour = One Credit
