In past lab experiments you may have performed titrations based on acid-base reactions. Stoichiometry for the acid base titrations was most likely 1:1 with an indicator dye used to find an equivalence volume when a color change occurred. However in this lab experiment, you will perform titrations for an oxidation-reduction reaction (often

A titration, as you recall, is a convenient method of learning more about a solution by reacting it with a second solution of known molar concentration. There are a number of ways to measure the progress of a titration. In this experiment, you will use an ORP (Oxidation-Reduction Potential) Sensor to measure the electrical potential of the reaction being studied in a titration.
